We have adopted bylaws for our organization and have attached a signed copy.

Part IV Narrative Description of Activities

America's military working dogs and their handlers have served courageously during World War II, Korean War and the Vietnam Conflict. They have a long legacy of military history for heroism and sacrifice on thousands of named and unnamed foreign fields of battle around the world. They have saved the lives of countless thousands of Americans, allied soldiers and non-combatants, including the protection of countless billions of dollars in combat military assets applied in those Wars (e.g. aircraft and airfields, hospitals, base camps, motor pools, ammunition dumps, fuel dumps, food and medical supplies, water storage facilities, strategic communication sites, naval supply vessels and depots) and the list goes on.

America has evolved its military working dog program into supporting today's war on terror in Iraq and Afghanistan. Military working dogs are also deployed to protect Americans and their assets during peacekeeping operations in other parts of the world and throughout the nation's homeland security. Throughout their 65-years of service, these dogs were and still are highly respected as living, intelligent and loving creatures.

The John Burnam Monument Foundation intends to raise public funds to promote public education and understanding of the nation's military working dog team history and assist the funding for building a National War Dog Team Monument in the Washington D.C. metropolitan area. In honoring America's war dog team heroes with a national monument, we are also honoring the human lives they have saved and continue to save. And there is no way we can put an exact number on all those American servicemen's children and grandchildren that are here today because America gave her sons and daughters a dog to serve with during time of War.

The Foundation intends to educate the public and provide insight into the historical and heroic legacy of the U.S. Military Working Dog Team, and their contribution to the defense of our nation's freedom since Dogs for Defense was activated during World War Two. The original founder, John Burnam's passion for a national monument to honor our nation's war dogs and handlers derived from having served with German Shepherd Scout Dogs and a Sentry Dog during the Vietnam War (1966-1968). It was there he realized how invaluable a dog was, saving lives in so many different ways that was far superior to any human on the battlefield. Therefore, he decided to initiate the National War Dogs Monument project.

The work of U.S. Congressman Walter B. Jones of North Carolina to initiate congressional legislation for a "National War Dogs Team Monument" has passed the U.S. House and Senate, and was signed into law by President George W. Bush on January 28, 2008. Raising the public funds needed to make it happen is now a critical objective. Funds raised by the JBMF, Inc. will be used for education and to help assist the goal to establish and maintain the monument.

A Conflict of Interest Policy is incorporated within the organization's bylaws and was unanimously approved by the board of directors.

Part VI Line 1a

The following are the primary goods, funds and/or services to individuals/organizations that will be provided:

Public education on the history and use of military working dogs that assists the funding to build and maintain a national monument forever honoring the nation's military working dog teams

For more specific details, please see our Part IV Narrative Activity #1 above.

Part VIII Line 4a

A major part of fundraising will include targeting e-mails and personal solicitations. It is also the organization's intention to accept donations via its Web site. The organization hopes to raise additional funds through speaking engagements, tours with a miniature national monument display, concerts, and film productions. The organization has no plans to use any third party professional fundraisers. All fundraising activities will comply with the IRS directives regarding donor acknowledgements.

Part VIII Line 4d

The organization plans to fundraise primarily from Texas. However, the organization will also accept donations on its Web site. The organization will strictly fundraise for itself and will not fundraise for any external organization, nor will it have any other external organization fundraise for it.

Part IX A Line 9

Admission fees to events about the monument, seminars and classes on war dogs, films about military working dogs, sales of replica monuments and replica dogs.
